

First I want to make a comment about local radio in the Denver, CO area. I used to enjoy listening to "talk radio" because I could listen to a variety of topics, and get differing viewpoints. However for approximately the last two years, the talk show radio stations have all been bought by Clear Channel. Most of the political comments now are geared toward the neo-conservative view. I can no longer find a talk show host that is middle of the road, so I just don't listen to these programs any longer.

My last comment is about national television news. Does Clear Channel own these stations as well? If I want to get objective news without some sort of political agenda, I have to get on the internet and read independent news sources. Frankly I'm quite disgusted by the "not-so-hidden" agendas.
